

WHO WILL BE HERO OF SERIES?

In Every World's Contest Some Star's Playing Has Shone.

MAYBE MATTY OR BENDER.

Two Great Pitchers Will Lock Horns
In Coming Games—Latter Has an Old Score to Settle—History of Those Who Starred in Big Series.

Not the least interesting feature of the world's series of the past has been the flashing of some star or stars in the firmament of baseball. Dopists always find a considerable amount of pleasure, not to say interest, in wondering who will be the next star that will dazzle a multitude and sparkle for a nation.

In the first world's series, played between the Boston and Pittsburgh teams in 1903, it was Bill Dineen. The latter's great work in the box practically captured the honors for Boston. In 1905, when the New Yorks defeated Philadelphia for the premier honors of the diamond, Billy Gilbert's great batting and Christy Mathewson's brilliant pitching were the features. In 1906 George Rohe's work at third, and particularly at the bat, made the Chicago Americans' victory certain over the Cubs. Frank Isbell of the Chicago White Sox was another to shine that year. It was his four two base hits in the fifth game of the series that helped to put the Cubs to rout.

Chicago Cubs was the big show; in 1909 it was Pitcher Babe Adams of the Pittsburghs. His great work in the box enabled the Pirates to defeat Detroit. Last year Coombs, Bender and Baker divided the honors.

Now that the Giants and Philadelphia Athletics are to play for the premier baseball honors, who will be the hero?

Of course no one can do it, but many experts think that it will be Mathewson or Bender. The men have an old score to settle. In 1905 Matty eclipsed Bender in the box, and now the Indian is out for revenge. Bender is in fine shape and has asked Manager Mack to use him as often as possible against the Giants. On the other hand, New York rooters believe Manager McGraw will depend mostly on "Big Six" to deliver the goods. Though no doubt the two twirlers will do some fine mound duty, it does not necessarily mean that one of the pair will turn out to be the hero. Some other player may spring into eternal fame. Who will it be?

History of the World's Series.

The coming world's series will be the seventh clash between the American and National league clubs' champions.

The Boston Americans won the first series from the Pittsburghs in 1903. The New York Nationals beat Philadelphia in 1905.

The Chicago Americans scored over the Chicago Nationals in 1906. The Chicago Nationals then turned in and redeemed themselves by whipping the Detroit Americans in 1907 and 1908.

In 1909 the Pittsburgh Nationals beat the Detroit Americans. Last year the Athletics defeated the Chicago Nationals.

This makes four wins for the National league and three for the American.

NEW MARABOU SETS FOR FALL AND WINTER WEAR

MARABOU promises to be very popular with women for late fall and early winter wear. Marabou is the plumage of an African bird of the stork family. Although easily domesticated, the bird is not popular with South African householders owing to its "eat-em-alive" tendency where pet dogs and kittens are concerned.

Marabou plumage can be made up into fluffy bands that are for the time going to be very popular. Marabou boas, wide and flat, and marabou muffs have the indorsement of fashion dictators.

Muffs this autumn and winter will be large, with padding enough to give them reasonable substance. They will be lined with soft satin and adorned with heavy fringes. Triangular muffs are to be seen with the tops wide and flat and the points carried downward and sometimes finished with an effective pendant.

The picture illustrates some of the new shapes for muffs and neckpieces. The designs are carried out in marabou.

WOMEN HEALTH INSPECTORS.

Head of the New York Health Department Praises Their Work.

Dr. Ernest J. Lederle, commissioner of health in New York city, who has a number of women at work in his department, is enthusiastic as to the effectiveness in this line of public service. Dr. Lederle thinks they are especially valuable as inspectors. He has 325 of them at work for him.

"As sanitary and home inspectors women do excellent work for us," says Dr. Lederle. "They have the ability to handle situations, and understand conditions that are really not in a man's province."

"As sanitary school and home inspectors they are satisfactory. In certain branches of food work their efforts are untiring, and there is nothing too much for them to undertake."

"Work that calls for inspection in the home rightfully belongs to women, and in such places they show their great value. You see, we have nurses in all schools, and these nurses also cover certain district work and inspect the conditions in the homes of the children."

"Now, if this work were given to a man, especially among the foreign homes, where a uniform and badge are feared, far less could be accomplished. The woman in such work inspires a confidence among the people that no man could gain."

"It is to a woman really just house-keeping on a large scale."

Faded Cottons.

If you wish to bleach faded summer dresses allow a tablespoonful of chloride of lime to every quart of water required. Stir the article about in this water until all color has disappeared, then rinse thoroughly in clean water.

FROM THE GARDEN.

Dried Flowers and Herbs That May Be Put to Winter Use.

To make lavender sachets take as many flowers as possible, dry them and prepare the following filling: One pound of lavender flowers and one quarter of a pound of gum benzoin. Pound these well together and add one quarter of an ounce of essence of lavender.

Toilet vinegars may be prepared by steeping the fresh blossoms in aromatic vinegar, which may be purchased of any druggist. Rose petals in season, carnations, violets, mignonette, heliotrope, rosemary, lilacs or any aromatic flowers will make good toilet vinegars. Steep 100 grams of petals in one quart of vinegar for about eight days. A wide mouthed bottle which is well corked and can be shaken up occasionally should be used. Strain by pressure and allow to stand for a couple of days, then filter.

If you are troubled with insomnia make a hop or pine needle pillow. Gather the needles of pine, fir or hemlock, make a muslin interlining for the pillow and add a cover to suit the taste.

Slippery elm, which grows in most woods, will supply a bark admirable for poultices. Slippery elm bark is also fine for sore throat. Make a decoction by pouring a cupful of boiling water over a teaspoonful of ground elm bark. When cold strain it and add lemon juice and sugar. Gargle the throat with this when needed.

Parsley salve, which is good for sores and burns, is made by simmering a handful of chopped parsley in a tea-cupful of lard. In about twenty minutes strain through cheesecloth.

Birch bark may be peeled from trees and taken home in sheets for the making of holiday souvenirs.

A QUAIN TABLE DECORATION FOR THE HALLOWEEN FEAST

THE Halloween party should be novel to be attractive. The table decoration shown here is one that cannot fail to please the young people. The center of the table is marked by a huge bowl of apples, grapes, nuts and autumn foliage through which small toy Halloween cats seem to be frisking. The chandelier is covered with a silk shade, the border of which is adorned with cats cut out of black velvet. These animals have white glove buttons for eyes, and their noses and whiskers are stitched in pink and white silk.

A series of black velvet cats is also tacked to the side of the tablecloth. Toy cats called mascats and having four leafed clovers on their front paws and white horseshoes on their breasts may be provided as individual souvenirs. Each cat may hold a place card with the greeting: "Welcome (Master or Miss So-and-so) to our Halloween frolic. Greetings and good luck."

These original cats may be purchased in the shops in various sizes and are not expensive. The Halloween black cat, pumpkins, witches and spooks make the most characteristic souvenirs for the festival. Autumn grains, fruits and plants may be utilized in more pretentious decorations.

A MERE MAN'S VIEWPOINT

Why Are Better Teeth to Be Found In the Unscrubbed Mouths of Savages Than In Those of Civilized Man.

ONCE upon a time when I was a barefoot lad with a bee sting on my big toe and an aperture in that particular part of my costume which in a flat building would be designated as "rear entrance" I met an Indian. I was driving my cow to pasture, and the Indian, camped with his fellows along "the bayou," strolled out to greet me as I crossed the bridge.

"Heap big coral box, all lined with velvet, red flame inside—boy want to see?"

And in his aboriginal tongue he stammered and stuttered at length, dilating upon the wonderful box he had in his possession, which he would be pleased to show the American boy—that is, me—for a mere trifle, a small coin, a knife, a pencil, anything. I stood enraptured, half consumed with desire to behold this wonderful curio, this bit from the tepee of an Indian princess; but, alas, I had inadvertently left behind all my valuables save a slingshot. This I proffered eagerly. The Indian grunted his displeasure, but finally took it and, having put it into his pocket far from my reach, grinned a diabolical grin and, opening his huge mouth, toward which he pointed, said:

"Boy—see! Lined with satin! Ivory box"—tapping his white teeth with the nail of his little finger—"and big red flame" running out his tongue. "Good-by, boy!"

For a moment I stood transfixed. Then rage consumed me, and I took a step or two after the Indian. Better judgment prevailed, however, as a second glance showed me the width of his shoulders and the suppleness of his limbs. I contented myself with an angrily flung stone and a heartfelt invective, neither of which seemed to disturb the stolidity of the crafty savage as he disappeared within his tent.

But the one thing that impressed me most about that Indian was this: When he opened his mouth his teeth were as regular and as white as a bull terrier's. And even now as I ponder the enormity of this red man's crime I cannot but admire his well kept teeth. Of course he never used a toothbrush, and goodness knows why they were white unless he had a habit of bone gnawing, like the dog, but they were white and fine, and I remember them to this day.

Mothers, teach your children to keep their teeth clean; wives, insist on hubby paying attention to his ivory; sweetheart, covertly suggest, if necessary, that Archibald quit carrying his toothbrush in his vest pocket and begin to apply it where it will do the most good.

If I were a Lochinvar I would look for a Venus who used a toothbrush more and a rouge box less, a maid who—But what's the use? I'm fat and forty and city broke.

Just the same I couldn't love a woman who didn't keep her teeth clean, and if I were a woman I should insist on the male end of the skit doing likewise. Clean teeth mean good teeth with the help of the dentist, and good teeth mean a fine digestion. Every woman knows what an AI digestion in a man means.

If you don't happen to realize don't tempt fate by hoping to learn from experience what it means to be married to a man with dirty teeth and no digestion at all worth speaking about.

Sour Cream.

At this season milk and cream sour quickly and may be utilized in making cottage cheese, griddlecakes, etc. One-half cupful of thick sour cream added to a veal or beef loaf when mixing makes it very moist and unusually good.

Sour cream may also take the place of sweet milk in boiled dressings for salads and sandwich fillings. It is a splendid substitute for sweet milk when making chocolate or maple fudge for candy or cake filling.

Sour milk will clean silverware beautifully.

For the Hair.

Egg shampoo is made by beating the yolks of two eggs in two cupfuls of warm soft water and then adding one teaspoonful of borax. Rub this into the hair, washing it off gradually with more warm water and rinsing at least three times.

WAS BANNER YEAR FOR GAME

Due to Interesting Races in Different Leagues Club Owners Made Fortunes—Few "Busted" Leagues—National Race a Good One.

The 1911 baseball season has been the most successful in the history of the national game. The number of "busted" leagues has been much less than in any previous year, and this in spite of the fact that the average salaries paid the players this year have been much in excess of those paid last season and previous seasons.

In the National league there has been the most exciting contest for the pennant in the history of that organization, New York winning out after a hard fight. Detroit set the American league "on fire" with a great record of early victories, but the Athletics after a great race won the championship.

The Eastern league race was not definitely decided until just before the finish, Rochester leading practically all the season, but in the final few weeks the Toronto and Baltimore teams were very dangerous to the leaders.

Minneapolis, strengthened by new players, made a good finish in the American association and won easily.

On the Pacific coast there is a great race on for pennant honors. Oakland, Vernon and Portland are now fighting it out for first honors, with Sacramento bobbing up every now and again to upset the calculations.

The New York State league race was the closest in years, and, while the Wilkesbarre Barons set a couple of new records by taking their third consecutive pennant and by leading the league from the first to last days, their supremacy was menaced until the very final week, and but for the fact that Albany and Troy proved weak road teams Bill Clymer might not now be boasting of his sixth pennant in seven seasons.

So close was the Connecticut State league season that the pennant was in doubt until the very last week, and the same can be said of the New England league.

Akron won the pennant in the Ohio-Pennsylvania circuit and set a new record of four consecutive wins.

The 1910 pennant winners of the Illinois-Missouri league, the Pekin team, put up a game battle, but lost out by twelve points to Clinton.

Numerous other close races could be cited. Taken altogether, baseball has never before enjoyed the prosperity that has marked the season of 1911, and already new and greater plans are being made for 1912.

UP TO DATE FOOTBALL TRICKS

Stagg of Chicago Says Old Time Tactics Will Not Win Championship.

Stagg, coach of the University of Chicago, says that up to date tricks on the gridiron will win most of the games this season.

After he had analyzed the recent scores Stagg made the prediction that old style tactics would not be likely to land any team on top this year. He attributed the good scores of some of the eastern teams to the presence of first class stars and the poor caliber of the beaten team, but declared that old fashioned football would be relegated to the discard later in the season when the championship contenders get together.

YOST DISCOVERS DROP KICKER

Herrington Shows Great Form In Booting the Oval.

Coach "Hurry Up" Yost of the Michigan football team claims he has unearthed what looks to be a find in the person of Herrington, the stocky half-back, who recently showed wonderful form at drop kicking goals during practice.

The thirty and thirty-five yard lines were easy for him, and it seemed to make no difference what the angle was at which he tried.
